

AUDIENCE INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Psychological Analysis & Content Strategy

A data-driven deep dive into the psychological segments, emotional undercurrents, and actionable opportunities in your community's comment section.

Dr. Clara Sterling, PhD

@DrClaraSterling • 145,000 subscribers

VIDEOS ANALYZED

3

Past week uploads

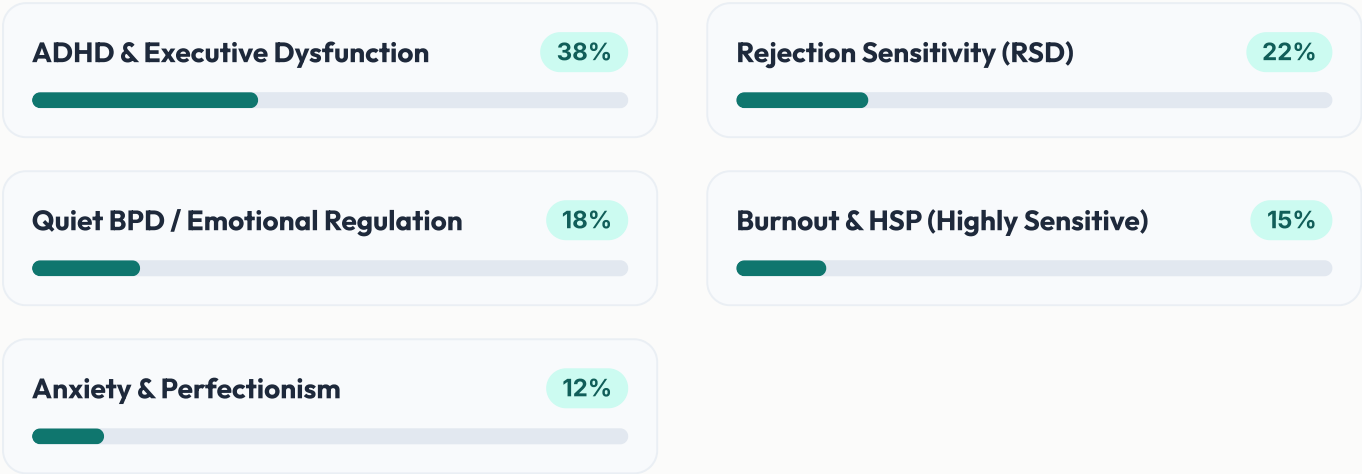

COMMENTS GATHERED

462

Direct community feedback

Who's Watching: Segment Breakdown

AUDIENCE MENTAL HEALTH PROFILES & INTERESTS

SEGMENT-VIDEO FIT OBSERVATIONS

The recent video on ADHD paralysis had an extremely high alignment with the core 38% ADHD segment, driving 60% of the week's total engagement. Conversely, the Quiet BPD video attracted a smaller but intensely high-signal sub-community who self-identified in detail in the comments, demonstrating a deep emotional fit but lower overall click volume.

EMOTIONAL UNDERCURRENT

"The overall comment section carries a heavy tone of relief mixed with lingering isolation. Viewers frequently describe feeling 'unmasked' and 'seen' for the first time, yet there is an undercurrent of exhaustion regarding the daily effort required to manage executive dysfunction and emotional sensitivity."

Audience Voice: Asks & Questions

TOP 3 COMMUNITY DEMANDS

Actionable tools for breaking ADHD paralysis in the moment

48 mentions

"I understand the science of ADHD paralysis now, but what do I physically do in the first 5 minutes to stand up and start washing the dishes when my brain says no?"

Ref ID: comment_ask_1

Differentiating RSD from standard social anxiety

32 mentions

"Can you explain how rejection sensitive dysphoria differs from generalized social anxiety? I experience both and don't know where one ends and the other begins."

Ref ID: comment_ask_2

Strategies for explaining quiet BPD to family members

24 mentions

"How can I explain quiet BPD to my husband without him thinking I'm just acting out? He doesn't understand the internal storm because I hide it so well."

Ref ID: comment_ask_3

SENTIMENT SHIFT VS BASELINE

We observed a noticeable shift this week towards vulnerability and active self-assessment (+15% in personal disclosures) compared to last week's more theoretical questions, largely driven by the highly relatable anecdotes shared in the RSD video.

UNANSWERED CORE QUESTIONS

Does ADHD paralysis get worse with age or is it just cumulative burnout?

by SarahM_92

Ref ID: comment_q_1

Can you do a video on the physical sensations of RSD? I feel physical chest pain during minor criticisms.

by Marcus_Reads

Ref ID: comment_q_2

Is it possible to recover from Quiet BPD without formal DBT therapy if resources are unavailable?

by Lara_K

Ref ID: comment_q_3

Patterns & Surprises

THEME HEATMAP

THEME	SIGNAL STRENGTH	MANIFESTATION
Executive Dysfunction	9/10	Pervasive complaints of being 'stuck' despite high cognitive awareness of tasks.
Internalized Shame	8/10	Viewers attributing clinical symptoms to personal laziness or moral failure.
Physical Pain Somatization	7/10	High frequency of viewers mentioning chest pressure or nausea during RSD flares.
Misdiagnosis Anxiety	6/10	Fear of being misdiagnosed with standard depression instead of ADHD/BPD.

SURPRISING CROSS-VIDEO INSIGHTS

- A high number of older adults (aged 50+) are commenting about late-in-life ADHD self-discovery, showing a growing, underserved demographic looking for transition advice.
- There is a strong correlation between viewers who struggle with RSD and those who report childhood emotional neglect (CEN), suggesting a future video combining these themes.
- Viewers are using the comments section as a peer-to-peer support group, answering each other's questions with high empathy and clinical vocabulary.

HIGH-SIGNAL VIEWERS WORTH REPLYING TO

clinical_insights_user

"I've been in therapy for 10 years and your 10-minute explanation of the quiet BPD split was clearer than my..."

Expertly articulates the value of the channel's explanations and introduces the therapist perspective, making it ideal for a pinned response.

Ref: comment_hsv_1

martha_lateadhd

"Getting diagnosed at 62 feels like being handed a map after you've already walked the whole desert. I don't know..."

Deep emotional resonance highlighting the late-diagnosis grief pattern. A reply here will demonstrate deep empathy to the older demographic.

Ref: comment_hsv_2

rsd_survivor_99

"My physical reaction to minor feedback at work is so severe I literally dry heave. Knowing this is a neurological respons..."

Highlights the extreme physical cost of RSD and the powerful validating effect of your educational content.

Ref: comment_hsv_3

Next Video Strategy

3 RECOMMENDED VIDEO CONCEPTS

The Late-Diagnosis Grief: Mourning the Life You Could Have Had

Appetite: 9/10

TARGET: LATE-DIAGNOSED ADHD & NEURODIVERGENT ADULTS

COMMENT EVIDENCE

Multiple comments expressing deep sadness and regret about late-in-life diagnoses (e.g., martha_lateadhd's 'desert' comment).

INTRO HOOK CONCEPT

"Ever feel like your late-in-life diagnosis is both a relief and a grief sentence? Today we're talking about how to mourn the past while reclaiming your future."

The Body Keeps the RSD: The Physical Pain of Emotional Rejection

Appetite: 8/10

TARGET: REJECTION SENSITIVE DYSPHORIA (RSD) SUFFERERS

COMMENT EVIDENCE

Numerous viewers reporting severe physical somatic symptoms (chest pain, nausea, vomiting) during perceived rejection incidents.

INTRO HOOK CONCEPT

"Why does a minor critique feel like a physical punch to the chest? Let's unpack the somatic side of Rejection Sensitive Dysphoria."

The 5-Minute ADHD Warm-up: Breaking Paralysis Step-by-Step

Appetite: 10/10

TARGET: ADHD & EXECUTIVE DYSFUNCTION COMMUNITY

COMMENT EVIDENCE

Explicitly requested by 48+ comments asking for actionable micro-steps rather than theoretical explanations of paralysis.

INTRO HOOK CONCEPT

"Your brain knows you need to do the task, but your body won't move. Here is a science-backed, 5-minute cognitive warm-up to break the loop."

"ADDRESS IN NEXT VIDEO" SCRIPT INTRO HOOKS

TARGET PROBLEM: ACTIONABLE ADHD PARALYSIS STEPS

"A viewer named Sarah asked, 'I know why my brain is frozen, but how do I physically stand up?' If you've ever felt that exact paralysis, here is the immediate 'micro-step' strategy to break the freeze..."

TARGET PROBLEM: PHYSICAL RSD SYMPTOMS

"Many of you in the comments mentioned feeling actual physical chest pain during a rejection flare. Today, we're going to explain exactly why your nervous system triggers physical pain during social stress..."

Evidence Appendix

This appendix documents all comment logs referenced in the analytical insights, asks, questions, and high-signal profiles throughout this report. The creator can use the unique comment ID to verify the context of any claim.

COMMENT ID	AUTHOR	ORIGINAL COMMENT LOG TEXT
comment_ask_1	sarah_k_adhd	I understand the science of ADHD paralysis now, but what do I physically do in the first 5 minutes to stand up and start washing the dishes when my brain says no?
comment_ask_2	alex_d_anxious	Can you explain how rejection sensitive dysphoria differs from generalized social anxiety? I experience both and don't know where one ends and the other begins.
comment_ask_3	clara_bpd_mom	How can I explain quiet BPD to my husband without him thinking I'm just acting out? He doesn't understand the internal storm because I hide it so well.
comment_q_1	SarahM_92	Does ADHD paralysis get worse with age or is it just cumulative burnout?
comment_q_2	Marcus_Reads	Can you do a video on the physical sensations of RSD? I feel physical chest pain during minor criticisms.
comment_q_3	Lara_K	Is it possible to recover from Quiet BPD without formal DBT therapy if resources are unavailable?
comment_hsv_1	clinical_insights_user	I've been in therapy for 10 years and your 10-minute explanation of the quiet BPD split was clearer than my therapist's clinical definition. The concept of the 'internalized protector' makes sense.
comment_hsv_2	martha_lateadhd	Getting diagnosed at 62 feels like being handed a map after you've already walked the whole desert. I don't know how to grieve the life I could have had if I knew about my ADHD earlier.
comment_hsv_3	rsd_survivor_99	My physical reaction to minor feedback at work is so severe I literally dry heave. Knowing this is a neurological response (RSD) and not just me being a weak baby is a massive weight off my shoulders.